Dear Group 24,

It was a pleasure to finally be able to see your product beginning to take form. The demonstration you provided us on Wednesday 9th was highly professional and very well prepared. It gave us the right kind of understanding with regards to your team ability and willingness to work with us.

As you know, we had agreed on a set of user stories prior to the beginning of your first sprint. We believe that the user stories were delivered in a manner we were expecting. It was also our expectation that the user stories you have delivered had correctly passed the required acceptance testing. Your demonstration has provided us with the confidence that this was achieved. We were also very pleased to see that there was no divergence from the original sprint plan.

As a client, we are always looking for any immediate business value in any product that you deliver to us. The current product has exceeded our expectations in terms of functionality and aesthetic appeal. We definitely see business value in your product, even in it's current early state. Being able to create and view account profiles will allow students to use the website immediately, a feature we consider to be valuable.

With regards to your technical architecture, we believe that the use of PHP is appropriate. We would have preferred a more streamlined package such as Django for quicker development though. Regardless, it was clear from your demonstration that PHP was very appropriate as we did not see any defects in your product during the demonstration.

Overall, we were very pleased with your presentation. It was clear and professionally prepared. The product demonstration was very easy to follow. We can clearly see that the resulting product was from a team effort. All our questions were answered to a level we were happy with. Please don't hesitate to contact us if you have any queries.

Sincerely yours,

Group 25
